

Name _____

When candidates are campaigning for political office, each party spends a lot of time and money trying to make its opponent look bad on television, radio and in magazines and newspapers. Can you think of a better way for candidates to campaign? If you could make three rules for candidates to follow during their campaigns, what would these rules be?

